(e) 8½ % respectively. In 1990, the FLFP in Pakistan and Afghanistan stood at 14% and 15% respectively. The Economic Survey cites several reasons for the declining women workforce. One is that more women are going for higher education, delaying their entry into the labour market. Another is with rising wages in rural areas, women who were forced to contribute to household income to make ends meet are no longer expected to go out. Lack of job opportunities, gender pay parity, education, access to finance, and pressures from society are the major stumbling blocks for women. To improve female participation in the workforce, the Economic Survey says, several reforms have been introduced such as increase in maternal leave to 26 weeks, compulsory day care centres for children, equal wage policy amongst others. The private sector and business community will be crucial in helping bridge the gap between skills and jobs and enable access to decent work for women. Vocational and technical training, life skills and financial literacy programmes for women to help them develop marketable skills and better decision-making abilities cannot be undertaken in a meaningful way without the involvement of industry. Companies can also invest in women entrepreneurs through microfinance, and bring their goods and services into supply chains. Enhancing women's access to the internet and ICT can create a merging market of connected women who can be linked to business opportunities. In addition, as employers, the private sector can invest in women's security against violence at home and in public spaces, and take steps to ensure their mobility through inclusive transport. Giving women and girls the opportunity to succeed is not only the right thing to do but can also transform societies and economies. "The economic facts speak for themselves: raising women's labour force participation to that of men can boost GDP, for example, by as much as 9 per cent in Japan and 27 per cent in India," as per the paper published by the World Economic Forum (WEF). Reducing gender gaps in employment as well as in education can help economies diversify their exports, while appointing more women onto banking supervision boards can challenge cosy group-think, thereby supporting greater bank stability and financial sector resilience. Yet, policy and legislative reforms can only do much. What is required is a change in mindset and cultural ethos that enable and empower women rather than bind them in the burden of household work.

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below them. India has reached the Moon but it has failed to get its women out of homes. The Economic Survey finds that 60 per cent of women in India in the productive age bracket of 15-59 years are engaged in full-time housework. Inclusive growth and gender equality are important for any country to reach its full potential and achieve faster economic growth. India has been working towards becoming a $5- trillion economy, but it seems to do that minus its female population. According to the data released by the World Bank in June 2020, India's female labour force participation (FLFP) is the lowest in South Asia. From 30.3% in 1990, India's FLFP dropped to 20.3% percent in 2020, falling behind Pakistan and Afghanistan, which were at 22.2% and 21.8% 9 of total number of students in Mechanical to total students in IT is 2 : 3. The ratio of total number of students in CS to total number of students in civil is 8 : 9. Total students in Electrical is 120 more than total students in CS and total students in Electrical is 60 more than total students in electronic. Total number of students in Civil and Electronic is 400.

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below them. India needs to create 10-15 million jobs per year for the next decade to provide gainful employment to its young population. Accelerating entrepreneurship and business creation is crucial for such large-scale employment generation. Governments are clearly aware of the need to improve financial literacy. One key element for the future is persuading consumers that they need financial education and enabling them to access it. Also important is better financial education in schools. Today's school-leavers need to be a lot more financially literate than their parents were if they are to manage their personal finances successfully through life. Students consume lots of their time on searching irrelevant things but they will not read anything regarding how they can get loans, financial assistance for higher education. Moreover, entrepreneurship tends to be innovation-driven and will also help generate solutions to India's myriad social problems including high-quality education, affordable health care, clean energy and waste management, and financial inclusion. Entrepreneurship-led financial growth is also more inclusive and typically, does not involve exploitation of natural resources. Access to finance represents one of the most significant challenges for entrepreneurs and for the creation, survival and growth of small businesses. For the development of entrepreneurship in India more financial institutions apart from the government should come up with low interest rates, flexible loan schemes, and better support. There is the financial institution that helps the new ideology, but the numbers are less. The blue-chip financial institution should encourage the youth to start up their business and provide them with a very good amount of loan at low interest rate. The lack of financial culture carries a lot of risks, students become manipulative and can become a victim of fraud. Thus, there is a need for financial awareness among all. For the success of financial literacy, there is a need to identify the various players in the matrix and understand the roles that they play.
